

Gaheriet and his friend were sitting on a couch one day trying to find the channel that their favorite team was playing on. They had no luck. Gaheriet's friend wishes there was an app that would show where all local games were being played or where to watch them if not on their local channels

Gaheriet gets inspiration to create an app that would show what local games where on and where they could watch if not on local channel

Gaheriet shows off his new app to his friends and have them download the app so they too can use it to find what games are playing on their local channels easier.

Gaheriet and his friends now use this app to see how successful it is and if it makes their live easier. The use it for a few weeks and end up loving the app

Gaheriet then goes and does a business pitch to investors to gather more funding on the app to make the app better and more effective. This would too allow him to have everyone be able to access the app